Deadwood, South Dakota was once a lawless frontier town ruled by infamous gamblers and gunslingers. Here men and women, like Wild Bill Hickok and Calamity Jane, forged their legends. You can walk in their footsteps and discover our Wild West past when you book your vacation to Historic Deadwood.

WILD BILL AND THE DEAD MAN'S HAND

On a hot summer day in 1876, Wild Bill Hickok was shot from behind while playing poker in a Deadwood saloon. He was holding a pair of aces and eights—the Deadman's Hand. But what the legend doesn't tell us is what else Wild Bill was holding.
